

NO DOUBT OF COURT DECISION

Committee Holds Rate Legislation Should Not Affect It

The senate judiciary committee, noon. General Solicitor Rich of the gave a hearing on the house railroad Boston and Maine said when the rate bill at 4 o'clock Tuesday after- house bill was reported it appeared most drastic, and it seemed that the railroad could not accept. President Mellen considered the bill with a good deal of care, and after giving the matter full consideration, felt he wanted peace with the state at any price, and because he is willing to do this, he has signified his willingness to accept a new plan, many terms of which he believes harsh, provided he can be protected against the federal authorities. The only amendments that are suggested look to that protection. He sincerely hoped differences could be forgotten.

NO MORE MEASLES FUMIGATING

Mayor Badger Thinks the Work Is a Needless Expense To City

Mayor Badger after getting posted thoroughly with the secretary of the on measles think that the city makes State Board of Health, I am convince a lot of unnecessary work in the way of that to continue this practice is of fumigating and also extra expense a waste of the city's money. FESTIVAL OF
THE PASSOVER
BEGINS TONIGHT

Tonight will mark the beginning of the Jewish festival of the Passover and will be marked by feasting and merrymaking. The commemoration of the deliverance of the Israelites from slavery and oppression at the hands of the Egyptians under Pharaoh's rule is a period of joy and thanksgiving for the orthodox Jews
the world over, and those of Boston have planned to celebrate in pronounced manner this year.

Where the feast of the Passover is kept most strictly, the firstborn son must fast today in commemoration of the deliverance of the first born of Israel, when the first born of the Egyptians were slain.

Hyman Goldman, teacher of the Hebrew school in this city, has invited several of the public to an exhibition to be given by the 50 scholars in connection with the passover service to be given at Eagles' hall at 126 p. m. on Thursday. Several of the teachers of the public schools will attend.

Following the recommendation of Mayor Badger on the closing of the

by the board of police commissioners proprietors of these places.

It is understood that they appealed to the board to extend the closing hour to 1 p. m., which the board granted. Mayor Badger favored closing at 11 a. m., when the matter was first brought up, but now agrees with the board on the extension asked by the people who conduct this business.

PEIRCE STATUE BILL KILLED

Senate Fails to Pass the Bill—Keene and Portsmouth Fare Well

Through devoting most of its time to roll-calls, the house of representatives reached but two measures in the morning session Tuesday, while a dozen other special orders remained on the calendar when the noon recess was taken. The two bills taken up, the Keene Normal school bill and the Portsmouth armory bill, were both passed.

The Keene bill had been put down to $44,500, and the question was on its passage. This appropriation is for new buildings and furnishings. A motion to refer the bill to the next legislature was defeated by a vote of 149 to 140. The question was then, "Shall the resolution pass?" On a division the house voted yes 152, no 153. After a roll call, the friends of the bill gained nine votes, while the opposition remained unchanged. The bill was passed by a vote of 161 to 153.

The appropriations committee reported a bill appropriating $200 for expenses of a New Hampshire delegate to the national conference to arrange for the celebration of the 50th anniversary of the battle of Gettysburg.

A printed letter from Speaker McGrover was distributed in the house Tuesday morning, in which he said to be "pleased to adjourn this week if the members would tend to business. He urged them not to filibuster nor to interrupt members who have the floor, be moderate in demands for roll-calls at all sessions, and to let the

Committee of Five to Conduct The New Lorimer Investigation

Senator La Follette reopened the Lorimer scandal when he introduced a resolution appointing a select committee of five to investigate charges of corruption in the election of William Lorimer and to report their findings to the senate. An extraordinary feature of the resolution is that it names the five senators instead of directing a standing committee to make the investigation. Another unique feature of the measure is that all five are new members of the senate. They are John D. Works of California, an insurgent; Charles E. Townsend of Michigan, a "near" insurgent; and George P. McLean, a regular, from Connecticut, with John W. Kern of Indiana and Albee Pomerene of Ohio, both Democrats.

BOSTON AND MAINE DIRECTOR PASSES AWAY

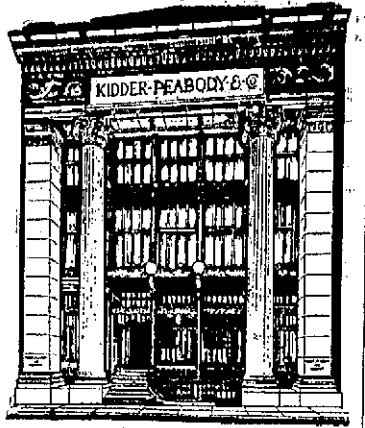

Henry F. Dimock, prominent as a New York financier and railroad man, and brother in law of Henry M. Whitney of Boston, and the late William C. Whitney, died Monday at his home in East Sixtieth street, New York. Mr. Dimock had been ill for five weeks, having been stricken with paralysis and heart disease.

Mr. Dimock was born in Coventry, Conn., in 1842. After receiving his early education in his native town Mr. Dimock was graduated from Yale in 1863 and two years later from Harvard Law school. Subsequently he was admitted to the bar, and began practice in New York City. He came prominently before the public in 1869 when he became agent of the Metropolitan Steamship Company. He declined to pay the fees which were exacted by the harbor master, prosecuted him for attempting to extort money and finally succeeded in obtaining his removal. In consequence of this work Mr. Dimock was appointed dock commissioner in 1875 and held that place for six years.

He was president of the McCall Ferry Company, a director of the Boston and Maine railroad company, the Dominion Coal company, the Dominion Iron and Steel company, the Loan and Improvement company, and the Knickerbocker Trust company, and a member of the advisory committee of the United States Lloyds and the Yale corporation. He was also a member of the Society of Mayflower Descendants, the University, Manhattan, Metropolitan, Down Town, Barnard, Lawyers' and Democratic clubs.

Mr. Dimock was first elected to the Yale Corporation in 1890. His second term would have expired in June, and until his illness it was considered practically certain that he would be re-nominated and re-elected. His wife, who was Susan C. Whitney of Brookline, and a daughter, Mrs. Cary T. Hutchinson, survive him.

Uncle Tom's Cabin.
The announcement that this famous play is to appear is always welcome by the people of any community. It is a great city or a cross roads town, for the story of Uncle Tom and of Little Eva is one that has perhaps never been equalled in pathos and heart interest in the history of American literature. Since the history of Uncle Tom's Cabin is the history of the most potent causes of the Civil war and the consequent liberation of every American citizen, rich or poor, young or old, and yet today it is as popular, as largely patronized and as interesting as it was when it made its first appearance. It is one of the very few plays that have appeared on the American stage that can be seen over and over again and each time with increasing interest, for it is a drama that has its foundation in the heartstrings of suffering humanity and appeals to the great and kindly heart of this mighty commonwealth of America.

Three Twins.
An attraction which is a winner in every sense of the word will be at Music Hall April 23. It is the Joe M. Gaites musical comedy success "Three Twins" with Clifton Crawford and the original New York cast and production. From the first note of the orchestra before the rising curtain until the finale of the last act the audience is held by the melody in the music, the pretty songs well rendered, the artistic dancing and the clever dialogue. One surprise follows another in scenic equipment, costumes, and novelties.

The play opens with a beach scene on the morning of a boat race. From then until the closing curtain the fun is fast and furious, the music sweet and catchy, the performance up to the top notch and the many novelties up-to-the-second. You will not laugh at what Clifton Crawford, the star, is doing or saying, you will laugh at what he is going to do next. Mr. Crawford takes the part of Tom Stanhope. Joseph Allen is his dyspeptic father, General Stanhope; Myrme Gebrue is Molly Sommers, always happy; Della Nivens, Mrs. Dick Winters, a cheerful weeper, Daisy Leon, Tom's sweetheart and Elsie Myrme the general's ward; other in the cast are Hugh Fay, Ruesel Lennon, George Herbert, Ralph Locke; there are summer girls and winter girls; songs full of ginger and repartee as sparkling as champagne and fully exhilarating and despite the reckless, rollicking gaiety of the comedy, it is a wholesome show throughout.

Evans' Honey Boy Minstrels
George Evans and his Honey Boy Minstrels are coming to Music Hall.

There is Only One "Bromo Quinine"
That is Laxative Bromo Quinine
USED THE WORLD OVER TO CURE A COLD IN ONE DAY.

Always remember this:
See the signature of W. D. Little

This means that the best minstrel entertainment on tour will be seen here soon. For the past two years minstrelsy has been given a new impetus by the remarkable organizations which Cohen and Harris cast about George Evans, the Honey Boy. No such splendid scenic surroundings had ever been known in the history of this time honored style of entertainment and the numerical strength of the company was almost beyond belief. With this firmly established reputation for highest class minstrelsy, George Evans enters upon his third season at the head of the Honey Boys and promises the same excellent character of entertainment. "The Criminals" will again be the subject of the first part setting. In this fairy-like spectacle the semi-circle of Honey Boys which have been gathered for this years' offering will make their bow and comedians John King, Sam Lee, Clarence Marks, Charlie Hillard and Honey Boy Evans will surely provide laughter and song hits enough to please the most exacting minstrel fans. Then there will be vocalists, Vaughn Comfort, Matt Keefe, James Meehan, the Irish tenor, Tom Kane, Wilson Miller and Master Leo Fagan to sing the newest ballads and lullabies.

To follow first part will be James Gorman's "Scenes from Blackville" with John King, Tommy Hyde, and fifty others. Then comes "Manilla," the spectacular drill and military march and then "The Firemen's Picnic," George Cohen's second musical minstrel comedy. Here it is that George Evans' artistic characterization of "Snowball Livingston" shines out and shows the genuine comedy traits of this masterful comedian.

As a special feature of this year's programme James J. Corbett is announced as the interlocutor of the first part. Mr. Corbett will conduct the opening part of the big bill in black face and then later on he will be seen as himself and giving his interesting talk on the events leading up to the July meeting of Jeffries and Johnson at Reno, Nev.

MEXICO TAKING CARE OF AMERICAN PRISONERS
At El Paso a private telegraph from Chihuahua stated that citizens there, rather sceptical about the success of the peace pourparles, were wondering when Madero would attack the city. A former citizen of that city, who still lives in the Sate of Chihuahua stated today that he believes Madero could not attack. He said that the Federal garrison in the city and environs numbers 2700 while the Insurrectos could not muster more than 1500. Despite reports to the contrary, he declared that the Insurrecto forces have not been recruited to any material extent in the last two months. Meanwhile the so-called peace envoys are waiting for word from Francisco I. Madero, Jr., before another move to bring about a cessation of hostilities can be made. A messenger is expected at any time.

Inquiry concerning the condition of the American prisoners at Casas Grandes revealed that the state department at Washington is determined to give the prisoners the utmost protection. Mr. Severs of New York wired the United States consul at Chihuahua asking that if possible he put his son in communication with the outside world and give him the benefit of a attorney. Since the publication of the identity of the prisoners it is believed that the Mexican government will see that they are not harmed. Casas Grandes at present is cut off from railroad communication with Chihuahua. Mexican officials will not take the risk of marching the prisoners through insurgent ranks, but it is promised that they will be brought to Chihuahua for trial in the civil courts on charges of sedition as soon as expedient.

The first passenger train from Casas Grandes since the battle on Feb. 6 arrived at Juarez Monday, bringing General Samuel Garcia Cuellar, who lost an arm and won promotion to the rank of brigadier general in a battle. Two soldiers and a machine gun also arrived. Three hundred and fifty soldiers were left on duty at Casas Grandes. The train came through without an accident, passing on the way north the first passenger train south-bound in more than a month.

El Paso is rapidly filling with refugees from the war zone. They have been walking into the city for several days. The corps have been ruined in the war zone, the food supply is exhausted, and workmen and the poor are crossing the border to earn enough to provide their families with food until another planting season arrives. Business at the local immigration station, which had been light since the railroads in northern Mexico were cut, increased materially this week.

Specials from Sonora and Sinaloa show considerable insurrecto activity in those states. Culican, the capital of Sinaloa, is surrounded by Insurrectos, but the troops in the city show no fear of attack. Word was sent in that the water mains are to be cut. An unsuccessful attempt was made to burn the market house last Friday. A correspondent in Guaymas reports that an American mining man named Stevens was robbed of $135 and all his supplies by Insurrectos near Fundacion. He was almost killed before he reached Navajon.

Of the twenty-three men arrested by American soldiers at Zaragosa, east of El Paso, while attempting to join the Insurrectos, almost all were El Paso Mexicans. One, however, is a Frenchman, Jean Huabolt, who says he is a correspondent for the Journal de Paris. All were locked up pending a preliminary hearing on Wednesday. When the Federal Court opened Monday Judge Maxey charged the jury regarding violations of the neutrality laws.

Francisco Marneau, presidente of Cahorra, Sonora, seventy-five miles southwest of Nogales, arrived Monday by automobile and reported that about two hundred rebels captured that place.

The Mexican revolution is handicapping the gathering of the Texas onion crop. Growers in the vicinity of Laredo are short several hundred laborers. According to dispatches received at El Paso two hundred men, on their way to the onion fields, have been conscripted for service in the Mexican army. One party of fifty a dispatch states, was taken from a train last Friday, held until the day following and then told that they were members of the army. They were supplied with uniforms and arms and sent to join the garrison in the vicinity of Torreon, it is stated.

GIRL IN HAREM SKIRT CLIMBED MOUNT SUNAPEE

Among a party of Philadelphians who Monday climbed to the peak of Mt. Sunapee to inspect the site selected for the new park reservation, was a young woman who wore one of the new fangled trousers skirts. She skimmed over the snow a lightly as a butterfly and appeared to be as much at ease as the other Quaker City women who wore the undivided effect.

An observing young woman, Miss Geraldine Bowman, who acted as guide, after returning to the village said:

"The name is more dreaded than the style. Harem gives one the shudders. If some name was adopted less scary, say the aviation skirt, it would go far to popularize the skirt. If the press would emphasize the fact that all wearers must have small feet it would help matters, for the new divided skirt shows off the foot and ankle admirably."

The skirt worn by the young woman was a modified design, for a front and back view showed no divided effect, a neat fold, or pleat, hid the divide completely and it was only when the wearer took a side step that the slit in the skirt was apparent.

and without prejudice and passion, attempts be continued to arrive at an agreement. President Mullen had felt for some time that the railroad ought to have the right of appeal, and he still feels that the road was not asking too much, but for the sake of harmony he has offered to waive that right. Then under the provision requiring the repayment to shippers, there arose the question whether such could be paid without violating the federal law.

He then proposed an amendment to section 1 by adding, "subject to the laws of the United States."

To section 3, line 17, after the words "public statutes," added "except in so far as the operation thereof is affected by the authority specifically conferred by such act."

At line 18, after the word "not," added "unless required so to do by law of the United States or by an order of the interstate commerce commission."

And at line 30, add: "This agreement shall not be construed as prohibiting changes in the classification made by the official classification committee subject, however, to the right of the public service commission upon notice and hearing as provided in the public service commission act."

In section 5, the last sentence beginning at the 13 line to be stricken out and the following substitute, "the public service commission shall not have the power to change or to authorize the change of any particular rate or rates until it shall have completed the investigation and made the report provided for in section 1 hereof and in no case shall said commission have authority to permit any rate now below the maximum fixed by law to be raised above such maximum nor permit any rate now exceeding such maximum be raised."

He said he was authorized to say as far as amendments 1, 2 and 3 are concerned, that the committee has not disagreed nor yet approved them. He considered the amendments fair, and in suggesting this solution of the problem the road is yielding to the state much more than though it could yield two weeks ago.

Mr. Burroughs, of counsel for the committee said the rate committee and its counsel all appreciate the spirit of conciliation and compromise in which they had been met by the railroad.

They are not yet in full agreement on all the amendments. The committee accepts amendments 4 and 5, but as to 1 and 3, it feels some doubt and as yet cannot accept them as drawn.

The committee holds that our courts have decided that there is a contract under which the state has a control over the rates on the Boston and Maine system in and out of the state, at least to the point of saying they shall not go above a certain point, even on the interstate rates. It does not want anything in the law to question the decision of the court or to surrender any of the rights now possessed. It is upon that ground that the committee has withheld approval of these amendments.

Mr. Rich said the road is entirely willing that it be provided in the law that these amendments shall not affect the decision of the court. The railroad agrees not to raise the interstate rates, though they are below the maximum. He suggested that the representatives of the committee and of the railroad sit down and try to work these theories out.

The committee adjourned until 9 o'clock today.

TELEGRAPH BRIEFS

Champagne War On.

Paris, April 12—The Senate Tuesday after a lengthy discussion of the serious situation which has arisen over the champagne question adopted a resolution in favor of the suppression of all territorial delimitations, as likely to provoke discussion between the various sections of the country. A law recently enacted excluding the department of Aube from the region of the wine of which can legally be designated champagne. This has resulted in demonstrations of protest in that department.

Big Lancaster Fire.

Lancaster, N. H., April 12—Fire, which for some time threatened to destroy a section of the business centre of this town Tuesday forenoon, burned a dwelling house and a livery stable owned by Charles and Oliver Gotham. Seven horses in the barn were suffocated. The loss is estimated at $10,000, partly covered by insurance. The blaze started from some unknown cause in the stable and quickly spread to a nearby house occupied by Frank Powell. Although other structures were endangered, quick work on the part of the fire department confined the flames to the two buildings.

Many Lost in Wreck.

Victoria, B. C., April 12—Nearly every woman on board the wooden steamer Inouquois, which foundered on Monday near Sydney, Vancouver Island, was drowned. Penned in the deck house of the boat, five or six women struggled when the sea broke in. They were beating against the glass of the saloon windows when the survivors clambered out to struggle up the side to the deck. Harry Harnell, brother of the drowned steward, was seen adrift on a door and was rescued by Indians. At Coal Island the sea cast up the body of Miss Isabel Fenwick. She had no life preserver and had tried to reach shore on a mattress to which her hand still clung.

His Third Veto Message.

Boston, April 12—The third veto message which Governor Foss has laid before the legislature this year, came into the house Tuesday with his excellency's disapproval of a bill changing the eligibility rules of the Marlboro fire department. Governor Foss, in his message, said he did not see why Marlboro should have different eligibility rules from those of other cities and towns.

Holocaust Indictments.

New York, April 12—Isaac Harris and Max Blanck, owners of the Triangle Waist company, were indicted Tuesday by the grand jury which is investigating the circumstances of the Washington Place fire of March 25, as a result of which 145 employees of the company lost their lives. The indictments, four in number, charge each man with manslaughter in the first and second degrees, the maximum penalty for which is twenty and ten years' imprisonment, respectively. Harris and Blanck were arrested at their homes, were arraigned and after entering pleas of not guilty, were released in $25,000 bail.

Boxer in Limbo.

Houlton, Me., April 12—Jack Leon, the Chicago boxer, was indicted on charges of manslaughter and engaging in an illegal fight by the grand jury which reported to the supreme court Tuesday night and is in readiness for his trial which will be held soon. The manslaughter charge is for the death of Billy Dunning, who died twenty-four hours after having been knocked out by Leon in the fifth round of a boxing match at Presque Isle the latter part of last November.

Promoter Indicted.

Boston, April 12—Three indictments of three counts each against Victor M. Will, a Water street mine promoter, charging the use of the mails in a scheme to defraud, were returned by the federal grand jury here late Tuesday. It is charged that Will, by misrepresenting the value of the stock of the Goldfield-Boston Consolidated Mining corporation of Nevada, in letters and printed matter sent through the mails in 1908, defrauded the following persons: Joseph Smith and Thomas Mitchell of Boston; Rose J. Blakney of Newton; Ralph M. Mosher of City Point, Maine; Frank Bean of New York city; George W. Clark of Wiscasset, Maine; Mrs. James Wright of Chester, Pa.; William G. Brown of Woodville, N. H.

Postoffice Man Arrested.

Chicago, April 12—John J. Daly, head of the wholesale stamp department of the Chicago postoffice, who stands accused of taking $3500 in government funds, walked into the federal building Monday night and gave himself up. He was locked up in the county jail. A week ago he disappeared just before the finding of the shortage in his department. Daly protested his innocence.

Athletis' Great Indian Pitcher Surprises Fans With Early Form

Philadelphia, April 12—Although after the season was a month old he began to mow down the heavy slugger in days of yore. Last spring interest is taken in the work of Big Chief Charlie Bender than all the rest. This has been the case for several years. The veteran has reached the age when pitchers generally deteriorate, but Big Chief is one of those young old men who fool us with the Phillies Bender pitched every now and then. About this time two years ago critics said that such fine shape so early 1911 ought to be one of the greatest years. The Indian seems to thrive on hard work. Bender recently stated that the one reason that his arm was in good shape so early in the year was that he had been playing golf this winter.

last election, another Liberal member of the house of commons, Richard Harold St. Maur, has been unseated. Henry Edward Duke, the former Unionist member, was declared elected by a majority of votes. A number of ballots on both sides were thrown out because of illegal payments in connection with the campaign expenses.

Chicago Ice Price High.

Chicago, April 12—Ice will cost more in Chicago this summer than in 1910, according to dealers. A shortage in the ice crop and an increase in freight rates are responsible for ice being placed in the increased cost of living columns.

OLD-TIME REMEDY DARKENS HAIR, GIVES COLOR TO FADED, GRAY HAIR

Dandruff and Falling Hair Quickly Stopped

From time immemorial, sage and sulphur have been used for the hair and scalp. Almost everyone knows of the value of such a combination for darkening the hair, for curing dandruff and falling hair, and for making the hair grow.

In olden times the only way to get a hair tonic of this sort was to brew it in the home fireplace, a method which was troublesome and not always satisfactory. Nowadays almost every up-to-date druggist can supply its patrons with a ready-to-use product, skillfully compounded in perfectly equipped laboratories. The Wyeth Chemical company of New York set up an ideal remedy of this sort, called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy, and authorize druggists to sell it under guarantee that the money will be refunded if it fails to do as actively as represented.

This preparation is offered to the public at fifty cents a bottle, and is recommended and sold by all druggists.

She Loved an Inventor

But She Did Not Feel That He Would Ever Succeed

By ESTHER VANDEVEER

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

It was absolutely necessary that I should marry. In these times many fields are open to women by which they can make a living, but then—well, teaching was about the only one. Girls went out as governesses, but instruction of any kind was not my forte.

There was no reason why I should not marry, except that there was no one where I lived to marry—that is, no one but Tom Baxter—and, though he seemed to like me very well, he made no move matrimonially in my direction. He was always throwing out hints about people marrying who have nothing to live on. To tell the truth, I agreed with him. Besides, I saw no prospect of his ever being able to support a wife, for he was an inventor, and we all know what that means. An inventor ninety-nine cases in a hundred is a rainbow chaser.

Tom lived in the village with his mother, but every now and then would go to the city "on business," he would say. It occurred to me that the business of applying for patents on machines that won't work practically or if they do some one else than the inventor gets what money there is in it is a very poor business. No, it would never do for me to rely on Tom. But I had come to be twenty years of age. Mother's income was not enough to take care of us all, and I must either find work or a husband. It nearly broke my heart to give up all hopes of Tom. He was a lovable sort of fellow, and his visionary disposition only made him more so. Persons who are always living in the clouds and always hoping are singularly attractive.

My father, who was now dead, had been a great advertiser in his day and had told me that if I ever wanted anything to let the fact be known through the press. He had never told me to advertise for a husband, and I had never dreamed of doing such a thing. But why not? The only objection to the plan was that I would doubtless receive replies from persons with unworthy motives. But I was not a fool to fall into a trap.

WILL JONES

TOM THREW HIS ARMS ABOUT MY NECK.

I wrote my advertisement, but I required a whole day to make up my mind to send it. However, in the evening I came to a decision and, taking it to the postoffice, mailed it.

I was especially relieved at getting few if any replies that indicated a trap. I attributed this to the wording of my advertisement. I was very careful to let it be understood that mine was a genuine case and that no one would be able to impose upon me. I received a number of answers, but there was only one that seemed worth my while to follow up. One letter came couched in the most respectful language and bore evidence of perfect sincerity. The writer said that he inferred I was cut off from meeting members of the opposite sex since my advertisement said that I lived in a small village and the perfect English in which my advertisement was written marked me for an educated person. He sympathized with me deeply for finding it necessary to use such a businesslike method, but commended me for adopting it since there appeared to be no other at hand.

I replied to the letter—the only one I did reply to—in the spirit in which it was written, though I said very little, and that was simply suggesting a correspondence. I shrank from meeting any one under such circumstances and never would meet any one without first being convinced that he was a true man. And even then he must convince me that he had written the letters I had received.

He replied, admonishing me to proceed with the greatest caution and not on any account to trust either him or any one else without submission to a number of tests. He would be perfectly content to wait for my character to appear in my letters. He would prefer that I should appear thus rather than in the shape of a photograph. He feared that if he should find me very attractive looking he might be unduly prejudiced in my favor and if I lacked beauty he might not be impressed with my evidences of character.

I corresponded for a long time with the name he gave me was Horace Allerton—but somehow we got no further than a correspondence. Several months passed, and yet he expressed no desire to see me. His letters were eminently satisfactory, and I confess I felt a keen desire to see what he was like. So one day I wrote him that I would be pleased to receive his photograph.

He replied that he had been dreading to be thus called on for some time, inasmuch as he had no pretense whatever to manly beauty. Indeed, he considered himself homely. "But," he said, "I am making some negotiations which if successful will put me in much better condition to marry than now. They will be settled within a week one way or the other. If the issue is to my advantage I will be happy to call upon you. I hope by seeing you I may be able to do away with some of the prejudice that would occur from your seeing my picture unrelieved by any person whatever."

It was about this time that Tom Baxter began to be more devoted to me than he had ever been. Of course there was no obligation on my part to my correspondent. That affair I sometimes thought was as much in the air as Tom's patents. But Tom really seemed to have picked up the idea that he was about to realize something remarkable. Whether it was his confidence or my desire that he should succeed I don't know, but I found myself wishing he would. And if he were going to make a strike I wished that he would make it before my "lover on paper," as I considered him, should call upon me. My necessities grew greater every day. I felt it was due to my family that I should not only relieve mother of my support, but do something for them all besides. I feared that if Mr. Allerton should turn out to be a desirable party I might find myself inclined to treat him coolly, having Tom in my thoughts—in other words, by not encouraging the one available I might lose him.

But as bad luck would have it Mr. Allerton wrote he was ready to call upon me, and at the same time Tom became positively aggressive. He said nothing more about the folly of persons marrying without an assured income and began in a halting kind of way to really make love to me. I put him off, saying: "Don't be silly, Tom. You'll never be able to marry—that is, there's not more than one chance in ten thousand of your being so, for that's all the chance there is for an inventor."

He looked very downcast at this and said he believed that there was some one who had first choice, as he expressed it. I told him that I had not yet seen the man I would marry in preference to him.

"Oh, cheer up," he said. "My case isn't as bad as you think it is. I've just succeeded in—"

I put my hands to my ears. I had heard the words "I have just succeeded" so many times that I was not only tired of them, but, feeling toward Tom as I did, they were a mockery with me. He went away without a word, and I went to my room and cried.

The next day I wrote Mr. Allerton that I would be pleased to have him call upon me at the home of my cousin in the city, a girl about my age, who I knew would permit me to receive any friend of mine there. I appointed that day week for what I called a preliminary interview. There was no warmth in my letter, but how could I warm up for a man whom I had never seen?

I received a note by return mail stating that he would meet me on the date I had appointed. "And now," he added, "I am much pleased to tell you that fortune after many disappointments has favored me. I am an inventor!"

I threw the note on the floor. "For heaven's sake, are the only men in the world I have to choose from inventors?" Then, after walking back and forth for awhile, I exclaimed aloud: "If I must wait for an inventor I'll wait for Tom!"

The door opened, and who should come in but Tom himself. I blushed crimson, for I was sure he had heard me.

The expression on his face was a study. There was satisfaction and, above all, amusement. His eyes fairly sparkled with mischief. They turned from me to the letter on the floor.

"Oh!" he exclaimed. "You have a lover!"

"Yes," I said fiercely, "and, like you, he is an inventor."

He fairly shouted with laughter. Picking up the letter, he read it. Coming to where I had broken off, he went on with it: "I have just sold a patent right for $100,000 and a royalty on every article manufactured. The money has been paid me."

"By Jove!" he added. "The fellow has got ahead of me."

I stood stock still, red as a beet and not knowing what to do. Tom threw his arms about my neck. "I'm this fellow Allerton, and I've had the luck stated in his note. I saw your letter lying on a table addressed to the newspaper. I wondered what it meant, subscribed for the paper, saw your ad, and surmised the advertisement was yours. I answered your advertisement and have enjoyed a correspondence with you amazingly."

"You ought to be ashamed of yourself," he said.

Tom and I are very happy. I have often blamed myself for not having had more confidence in his ultimate success in his inventions, or at least more patience in the matter. I accuse myself of selfishness and a want of steadfastness toward him. When I say these things to my husband he says I was right, that there were a thousand chances to one that he was following an ignis fatuus. How contrary of him!

"OUT OF WHOLE CLOTH"

There was once a very, bad boy who delighted in frantically crying "Wolf! Wolf!" and then in watching people hurrying from all directions to save him from an imaginary foe. But after the people had been hoaxed several times they let the mendacious youngster severely alone, and his cries fell on unheeding ears. One day a real wolf did come and the perpetrator had good cause to shriek for succor. His former dupes, however, were in no mood for being tricked again, and the bad boy was eaten, the wolf supposedly living happily ever after.

This week a Boston newspaper, a sheet of the most sallow type of yellow journalism, has stirred up a tempest in a teapot over an ordinary shore dinner partaken of by members of the State Senate at the Rockingham in this city. It created features which never existed except in the imaginative brains of its editors; it faked interviews which were never given; it attacked the characters of men against whose names no word of scandal has ever been uttered, and with all its mischievous ingenuity has concocted out of whole cloth an elaborate fabric of untruthfulness which would put the most rabid political novel of the day to shame, but which in real life would be incomplete unless adorned with the names of Ananias or Munchausen.

The reading public of New England is familiar with the pyrotechnic journalistic displays of the paper in question. Year in and year out it has seen its sanguinary, epoch-making stories of one day divide into six line paragraphs the next. It has seen and heard it crying "wolf" all its brief existence. Therefore it goes without saying that the furor which it claims to have aroused throughout the state at its "revelations" is for the most part imaginary.

And fortunately, the gullible individual who has unquestionably swallowed this monstrous fabrication along with scores of its predecessors is in such a decided minority both physically and mentally that the harm wrought by the Boston paper's plethora of falsehoods is infinitesimal.

It is much to be hoped, however, that the innocent targets of all this malignant mud-slinging will not suffer it to pass wholly unnoticed. Naturally they regard the preposterous attack as but a huge joke, but it might not be unadvisable to retaliate by contributing a few more to the deluge of libel suits which the offensive publication necessarily encounters in its slanderous career.

NEW ARMORY ASSURED.

The great benefit of being united on any matter that is for the interest of the city, was well demonstrated in the state armory matter. The bill was introduced by Representative Stoddard and he had the backing of the entire delegation, and when needed, the backing of a representative gathering of citizens. They attended the hearing at the request of the delegation. On Monday evening when the delegation expressed a wish for a little support thirty of the representative business men headed by the Mayor went to Concord and remained over night. Everybody was solid for the state armory being located in this city. If this same unity of action could be secured on all matters pertaining to the welfare of the city, it would only be a short time before Portsmouth took her place where she belongs as a shipping port of prominence. The beginning was made on the state armory, now let this same spirit be fostered and shown in other matters.

BIRDSEYE VIEWS

Mr. Funk, we glory in your spunk.

All the same, we'll bet that Tech's present site won't be teched by a hanged sight.

Miss Thelma Green of Skowhegan, aged two years, has living four great-grandmothers. Isn't that great?

T. Roosevelt, Jr., is to go on the road as a carpet salesman. He has evidently inherited the rugged physique of his father.

The man who sold a 100-ton bridge into place in forty-nine seconds at Huntington, Mass., judged by engineering standards, made a grand slam.

Many a man who starts out in life paddling his own canoe comes back in somebody's else motor boat, says the Washington Post. And then again, vice versa.

If it takes Gov. Foss an hour and 20 minutes to walk the two miles from his home to the state house, how long would it take him to walk around the world? asks the Globe. Meaning The World in Boston?

If the late Gen. Stanley Williams, killed in Mexico at the head of his little insurgent force, had not deserted the United States army, he would probably have still been a quartermaster sergeant. And a good many people would heave rather be a live dog than a dead lion.

The first bill introduced in the senate of the 62d congress was to establish a department of health, but from all indications, it won't be very healthy for Lorimer in those parts after a little more investigating has been done and a little more disinfectant scattered about.

O. for a bunch of trailing arbutus—the sweetest little flower in all the world—to assure us that spring has really come! says the writer of "As She Sees It" in the Lowell Courier-Citizen. Doubtless Mr. James H. Dow of this city, who picked trailing arbutus two weeks ago, would be delighted to satisfy "As She Sees It's" yearning.

AMONG OUR EXCHANGES

A Sweeter Name.

Most of the birds that fly, the fish that swim and the beasts that wear fur in the latitude and longitude of New Hampshire have been under discussion in the state legislature during the present session, but we do not remember hearing anything said about the muskrat.

One of our exchanges, however, the Baltimore American, makes him the subject of extended editorial discussion. The American thinks the suffix "rat" applied to the muskrat has robbed this animal of high repute as a table delicacy and deprived untold thousands of human beings of the luxury of dining off the aforesaid tid-bit. "If the judgment of a good many tidesmelter Marylanders is to be trusted," says the American, "muskrat is a delicacy which if justice were done, should be classed with canvas-back duck and diamond back terrapin." So it demands that the old Indian name, "musquash," should be applied to the muskrat, in order to make it more desirable, if not more palatable.

This matter seems quite as worthy of legislative consideration as most of the fish and game laws of our present session, and while the remaining time is short the session could end appropriately with a thoughtful debate upon the desirability of a legal enactment doing away with the muskrat and substituting the musquash so far as the authority of our state government extends.—Concord Monitor.

The Senate's Backbone.

Today there is an effort being made by politicians to make it appear that Mr. Mellen has gone back on his voluntary utterance that he would not interfere in politics and that he is employing sinister methods to control the state senate in the pending railroad

A TIMELY TOPIC

—BY—
JUDGE FRANCIS E. BAKER,
Of the United States Circuit Court of Illinois.

THE RIGHTS OF CAPITAL AND LABOR

Without the aid of statute the courts have long since become agreed that workmen have the lawful right to organize for the purpose of securing improvement in the terms and conditions of labor, and to quit work and to threaten to quit work as means of compelling or attempting to compel employers to accede to their demands. The capitalist asserts his right to an unobstructed access to the labor market so as to get his work done and thus free himself from the demands of his opponents. The workmen assert their right to an unobstructed access to the labor market so as to keep others out of their places.

The sympathetic strike, like the spite fence, is not the beneficial use of the co-equal right, but is the usurpation of the power to punish. This infliction of harm is unjustifiable unless the harm is only the harm that naturally and directly flows from the good faith exercise of the competitive right. That is, the loss of his business that the employees presenting their side of the controversy to the other employees so that they freely and of their own judgment decline to work for the employer, must be suffered by him without complaint. Therefore, persuasion and picketing in order to learn who the new employees are to whom to present their cause are lawful, and all judgments to the contrary are wrong, I believe. But the use of force or intimidation to keep others away against their will is unjustifiable because it deprives the employer of his co-equal right of access to a free labor market.

But concerted pressure by the strikers to coerce members of society who are not directly concerned in the pending controversy to make raids on the rear—the secondary boycott—is wrong, not only because such action is not within the immediate field of competition, but because the direct, the primary attack is upon society itself. One set of rules should govern the action of both contestants. If the sympathetic strike is a foul blow the sympathetic lockout is equally foul. If a boycott is held to be an attack in the rear under like circumstances, a blacklist is an attack in the rear.

rate legislation. We have no means of knowing for an absolute certainty whether this contention is well founded or not, but we are frank to say that the balance of probability is strongly against it. The disposition which has made its appearance among certain New Hampshire politicians, in the past few years to question the motive of everyone who believes the railroad should have a right to exist and do business at a reasonable profit, tends to add to the probability in favor of the honesty of the senate. Newspapers are being furnished with matter, free of charge, which states that if the senate is not good and refuses to concede to the demands of the governor, his excellency will administer a sound slap on the wrist, and if that fails to bring the honorable senators to their senses he will take the stump and conduct a vigorous political campaign against such of them as fail to come to time. What the governor expects to do by such a course is difficult to comprehend, but it is to be hoped that the people of New Hampshire are represented in the senate by men with sufficient character and backbone to vote for what they believe to be right, regardless of threats or theatricals.—Newport Champion.

A Trifle Inconsistent.

There seems to be a little inconsistency in the ranks of the "reformers" of the state. In a long and exceedingly partisan manner the "Good" Government Associates, which perhaps had better be called Bass' Political Advancement Bureau, sent out Tuesday to the various newspapers of the state an article upon the present political situation in New Hampshire.

In a large headline it announced that Governor Bass was to start a fight for the shippers, and in the piece itself this idea was expanded. Now, if we remember rightly, it was at one of the special committee hearings on the rate question that the railroad introduced a multitude of the shippers who testified to the reasonableness of the present tariffs, and who expressed themselves as perfectly satisfied with the rates. The corporation counsel offered to secure a large number of our business men to testify in a like manner, but the committee—was it the "progressive" governor had a large share in the making, and composed of men holding similar views on this question with him,—refused to permit any more witnesses to be heard, stating that they were entirely satisfied that the road had proved its point, namely that the shippers were satisfied with present rates. Yet in spite of this statement by his own followers who constituted this committee, he is to take measures to "fight for the shippers." Does this not seem a trifle inconsistent? If Governor Bass is really desirous of fighting for the shippers he will see that the breach which has existed between the road and the people in general is healed by a quick settlement, rather than by attempting to "fight for the shippers" by keeping this question in the limelight.—Dover Democrat.

The Lyman section of the Alumni association has sent out notices of a banquet for New Hampshire men, to be held April 14, at Young's Hotel in Boston, and earnestly requests that every New Hampshire man in New England attend. There will be several addresses and a general discussion on subjects of vital importance to the college. Mice will be furnished by the college orchestra. The committee in charge of the arrangements consists of F. E. Korr, '89; D. F. Bruden, the chosen by keeping this question in the limelight.—Dover Democrat.

NEW HAMPSHIRE COLLEGE

Prof. F. W. Taylor has arranged with Principal H. W. Lewis, of Appleton Academy, New Ipswich, N. H., for a series of lectures to be given by the heads of the Agricultural departments before students of the Academy and the members of the Grange at Ipswich. A part of the lectures are to be given this spring and part next fall. Each speaker is to give two lectures on consecutive nights. The first set is to be given by Prof. Taylor, April 15 and 16 on the subjects, "Fertilizers, Their Use and Value," and "Corn Culture." The second set is to be given by Prof. Mendenhall April 20 and 21 on the subjects of "Old and New Things in Potato Growing" and "Orchard Management." The remaining lectures to be given in the fall by Dr. George Kendall and Professors Russell and Eckman are to be arranged later.

Friday evening in Thompson Hall, the members of the Agricultural club gave a successful play representing a meeting of the college faculty. The individual traits of the various members of the faculty were caricatured, student petitions and matters relating to the student body were discussed in a humorous manner. The proceeds of the play will be used toward defraying the expenses of a stock judging team which the club intends to enter next year at Brockton, Chicago and other judging contests of importance. In these contests in previous years, the team has had unusual success.

The courses in Bible study which have been conducted by the Y. M. C. A. during the past winter terminated last week. According to the secretary of the organization, the interest and attendance have been extremely pleasing and better than in previous years.

The board of control of the Experimental station met in Pres. W. D. Gibbs' office Saturday. The meeting of the board of trustees will be held April 20.

The Alpha Chi Sigma fraternity, an honorary, national, chemical fraternity, has granted a charter of organization to the Chemical Collegium.

The chapter which will be installed next Tuesday night will be known as the Mu chapter of Alpha Chi Sigma and will be the first one in eastern colleges.

The Y. M. C. A. was represented at the New England conference of Y. M. C. A. Presidents, held at Amherst, April 6-9.

MAY

A flower in the summer's ray,
Losing its fragrance in decay,
We saw her fading day by day.

And, though the cheerfulness of youth
Helped often to disguise the truth,
From the dear ones she loved, forsooth,

A melancholic sweetness glowed
In the mild glance which she bestowed
On all who met her on life's road.

Sleep radiating to the tomb,
She never murmured at the doom
Afflicting her in youthful bloom.

That hope sustaining, to her mind,
The one that's offered all mankind
Of an abode where God's enshrined.

And Resignation cleared the way
Over which her falling steps should stray,
And Faith the darkness changed to day.

A flower stricken in its pride,
Are yet had come the eventide,
We saw her from the living glide.

And dressed in funeral array,
As on her Graduation day,
How beautiful in death she lay!

Love round her couch had flowers
Strown,
Whose lives, although in fragrance blown,
Were emblematic of her own.

RATE QUESTION HITCH DELAYS LEGISLATURE'S CLOSING

An adjournment of the legislature this week had been counted upon. The practically assured amicable adjustment of the rate question indicated this. But a slight hitch in the proceedings today made it improbable.

There is no real disagreement; the parties representing the governor and the council for the railroad had agreed upon the perfecting amendments to the bill desired by the latter. But the members of the House committee balked a bit at this afternoon's conference; they were quite in accord as to substance, but they found that their duties in the House had left them little time of perfect the phraseology according to their sense of what was demanded. The House consumed a large part of its time in roll calls today.

When the senate judiciary committee met this afternoon to consider the rate bill as it came from the House, Edgar J. Rich, general solicitor for the Boston and Maine, made a concise statement as to the progress toward agreement. He pointed out that a revision of the relations between the state and railroad, as provided for in the bill, was a matter of contract and that as such the railroad was, of course, free to accept or reject its terms. In some respects these were so drastic that it seemed doubtful if they could be agreed to. Still the bill established as the policy of the state the principle of relief from the burden of the unprofitably low rates that had been declared illegal by the supreme court. And fully appreciating what that implied, President Mellen, being desirous of maintaining the most amicable relations with the state and desiring to carry out unhampered his policy of transportation improvement that meant so much for New Hampshire and the development of her possibilities both industrial and as a great national pleasure ground, was willing to meet the state much more than half way in the matter. So he yielded the points that he had been insisting upon and in substance accepted the bill reported in the house.

Mr. Rich explained the purport of the perfecting amendments, which were simply designed to protect the railroad against the consequences of a possible conflict of jurisdiction between the state and the federal government in relation to interstate rates; also safeguarding the railroad against any charge of rebating in consequence of repayments to shippers. It was stated that he and the House committee were in accord; they only needed time to agree upon the phraseology.

Sherman E. Burroughs, of counsel for the committee, stated that it had been felt necessary to proceed cautiously, lest the language impair the unique advantage of the state in its authority over rates, not only in New Hampshire, but to points on the Boston and Maine system outside of the state. The committee adjourned until 9 o'clock tomorrow. By that time an agreement will probably have been reached.

President Mellen's letter to George Rublee was everywhere the talk of the day. It was known some days ago that such a letter had been written but it was not publicly known to whom it had been written. There has been an insistent demand that it be made public. Mr. Mellen did not feel at liberty to give it out, but let it be known that the party to whom it was addressed was at liberty to do so. So today hundreds of people were asking: "Who is George Rublee?" "And why should President Mellen be writing to him, an 'alien' in the state on New Hampshire railroad affairs?" The disposition to resent his participation and to regard him as an interloper is hardly justified. But there has been so much manipulation of the administration side from outside the state, at Boston and New York, that many people have grown perhaps unduly sensitive about it. In this instance, however, Mr. Rublee deserves thanks as a harmonizer. He is an old and intimate friend of Gov. Bass and in the interest of the governor he approached Mr. Mellen to see if the settlement so sincerely desired on both sides could not be arranged. And his efforts proved worth the while.

Mr. Rublee is a law partner of Joseph Cotton in New York, who was a college chum of Gov. Bass at Harvard. Mr. Rublee was associated with Louis D. Brandeis in the Ballinger case. His father was the late Horace G. Rublee who late in the seventies went to Boston from Milwaukee as associate editor of the Daily Advertiser, and after a few weeks there returned to Milwaukee to become chief editor of the Sentinel. George Rublee became a prominent Chicago lawyer, and went thence to New York. He is a member of the summer colony at Cornish, along with Winston Churchill, Norman Hapgood and other men of art and letters. So as a resident of New Hampshire at the time of year when life in the Granite state is altogether most worth living, he naturally feels an interest in her affairs.

The Senate Tuesday sat down hard on the House resolve for a statute to Franklin Pierce, defeating it by an overwhelming vote. So New Hampshire's President goes unburied in Irgone. He was beloved as a nice old-school gentleman, celebrated as Hawthorne's intimate friend and scorned as a copperhead. The state has saved some money and has probably been spared the infliction of a bad work of art.—Concord correspondent Boston Herald April 12.

AMERICAN MILLIONAIRE ARRESTED AS VAGABOND

The Brussels, Belgium, papers Tuesday morning published a story concerning Ralph Brandeth of New York, and Augustus Mathias the latter being described as the New York man's secretary, in which it is asserted that through the intervention of justice, the two men have been released from prison after serving only 29 days of a two years' sentence.

According to the published account, Brandeth and Mathias were arrested on March 17, charged with having swindled the proprietor of a hotel, and were subsequently sentenced to imprisonment as vagabonds. The papers state that an investigation conducted by the minister justice convinced him that Brandeth was an American millionaire.

Mathias revealed, counsel for Mr. Brandeth, said that his client was a partner in the Alcock Manufacturing company of New York. He explained that Brandeth had found himself temporarily without money and was unable to pay his bill at the hotel. The hotel keeper asked him to leave, which he did, stopping with a friend. The hotel keeper later denounced him to the police and charged him with borrowed money under false pretences.

Brandeth was arrested March 17, and in spite of protests, was sentenced to two years' imprisonment as a vagabond. The court's proceedings passed unnoticed.

In the mean time the minister of justice called to New York city to verify his identity, but received no reply until Tuesday. He then immediately ordered the release of Brandeth, with apologies. It is understood, however, that the matter will not be allowed to rest.

The American legation will take up an investigation of the case, considering it inadvisable that an American should be 29 days in jail without the opportunity of justifying himself. The authorities are greatly annoyed over the affair and announce their readiness to make a ample official expression of regret, and pecuniary compensation if desired.

The judge who had charge of the case asserts that the fault in the delay lies with the New York authorities. While waiting for a confirmation of his identity, the judge said, Mr. Brandeth was subjected to the harshest rule of the prison.

The Brussels newspapers comment in strong terms. The Elolie Belge says it is a shame that such an incident is possible in Belgium, and that it is probable that this will lead to a reform in the law of vagrancy.

The corporation directory of New York names Franklin Brandeth as president of the Alcock Manufacturing company, and Danbury Brandeth as a director, but does not mention Ralph C. Brandeth in the company's list of officers and directors. Guy S. Brandeth, a brother of Ralph, lives at Short Hills, N. J., but could not be reached Tuesday night. It was reported recently that Guy S. Brandeth had acquired for a consideration of $10,000 the remainder of Ralph's interests in his father's estate.

Mrs. Ralph C. Brandeth, who lives at Belport, L. I., said that she had not seen here husband for months, and did not know of his whereabouts or the business in which he was engaged. Mrs. Brandeth was Miss Edith C. Armstrong before her marriage two years ago. The wedding ceremony was performed while both she and Brandeth were swathed in bandages as the result of an automobile accident near Monroe, N. Y.

Young Brandeth's mother, who also declared that she knew nothing of her son's whereabouts or activities, fitted out the yawl Taormina for him to make a world cruise four years ago. The yawl collided with a four-master off her spars, and was compelled to put back to New York, when she struck a large a mile or so further on.

Brandeth is the younger son of a well known manufacturer of medicines. Four years ago he set forth on a cruise around the world on the yawl Taormina, which however did not get beyond New York harbor owing to a collision. In 1909 this heir to a large fortune was prominent in an episode which involved the wrecking of an automobile in which he was rushing with his betrothed to get married. Injuries were received by them which compelled a stay in a hospital, following which there was a marriage, followed not long after by a separation. Last January Brandeth was reported at Monte Carlo, from which he is said to have cabled to the sources of supply in New York for funds.

KITTERY LETTER

Kittery, April 11. Another thorough social and financial success was scored on Tuesday afternoon and evening when there was held a "Household Bazaar" at Grange Hall, under the auspices of the Aid Association of York Kittery. It is a byword about the village that when the Redcoats get up an entertainment you are sure of a good time, and this proved each word to any of its devotees. The afternoon sale was well patronized and there was a good collection of old members to help swell the fund. The evening was also for the gathering, and the large attendance, which taxed the capacity of the hall to its utmost, rapidly depleted the stock of articles for sale in the booths. The entertainment, consisting of the sketch "How the Story Goes" was warmly applauded, and well it might be, for the piece was exceedingly well taken. The following were the characters:

Mrs. Brown, Mrs. Thomas Morrow, Mrs. Green, Mrs. Berenice Glidden, Mrs. Pease, Mrs. Lena Ryland, Mrs. Taylor, Mrs. Margaret Jackson, Mrs. Rice, Mrs. Emily Shaw, Mrs. Snow, Mrs. George Seawards, Mrs. White, Mrs. Mollie Latis, Mrs. Doolittle, Mrs. Mildred Donnell.

And it might be added here for the benefit of any who were in doubt, that it was "the new minister's family" who moved into the Smith house just across the street from Mrs. Brown.

The various booths about the hall were handsomely decorated and were as follows:

Parlor—Decorated with violets and evergreen, and where potted plants were for sale, together with other articles suitable for the room, in charge of Mrs. Georgia Plinkham, Mrs. Mary Vahly, Mrs. Mae Googins, Miss Margaret Jackson.

Nursery—in the national colors and trimmed with flags, where children's clothes and toys, also home made candy were on sale, was presided over by Mrs. Mollie Latis, Mrs. Nellie Trefethen and Mrs. Sarah Grant.

Lady's boudoir—In pink roses and arched boughs, where many pretty articles were found, was in charge of Mrs. Annie Jenkins, Mrs. Addie Hall, and Mrs. Grace Moore.

Kitchen—in wistaria and green, where aprons of all description, besides many other useful articles were on sale, was under the direction of Mrs. Hattie Adams, Mrs. Clara Pray and Mrs. Grace Standish.

Dining room—in Easter lilies, where ice cream and cake were dispensed, was in charge of Mrs. Leslie Williams, Mrs. Eva Damon and Mrs. Lila Keen.

Last, but by no means the least, was "Aunt Dinah," whose large pocket filled with mysterious bundles, were a source of delight to the children. Mrs. Minnie Morrow was in charge of this feature.

The few remaining articles were auctioned off late in the evening by Leslie Williams.

What, oh, what, is the matter with the town water? For the past week or more it has been almost undrinkable, and the thirsty populace have been obliged to resort in many cases to their long disused wells or to those of their neighbors. Many are the guesses to which this state of things is attributed. It is very, very much to be hoped that it will be of short duration.

There will be a musicale and supper at the First Methodist church at North Kittery Friday evening, April 14.

Mrs. Joseph Bridges of York was the guest of her niece, Mrs. J. Edwin Paul on Tuesday.

Oscar Johnson said the trip was one of the hardest he had ever experienced.

The five old ship S. D. Carlton reached Boston Tuesday on her first trip as a barge. She was dismantled at New York.

BOWLING

The bowling team of the Navy Yard clerks jolted the Newspaper team on Tuesday evening at the Elks Alley when they caught them out of luck and won out in the last string. The clerks had a fine lusty crowd of rooters and they certainly did not come when Kel scored one of his numerous eparcs or strikes. The pencil pushers won the first string with thirty-five to spare and the clerks then got a hustle on and pulled down the lead to sixteen. The last string was all the clerks with spares and strikes so frequent that an expert accountant was called in. Kelley was high man for the match with 285, while Moulton won the high single string with 106.

A PLEA FOR THE PORTSMOUTH

The fate of the old wooden warship, Portsmouth interests a wider America than did the saving of the Constitution by Holmes's poem. Atlantic joins Pacific in hoping that her remaining days may be spent inside the Golden Gate.

Although launched in the early, uninteresting forties, the Portsmouth has the good fortune to sail in California's noble port in July, 1846, and hoist the American flag, thereby taking the initial step to bring that state, into the Union. In the following years the ship helped suppress the African slave trade, did gallant service in 1850 at Canton, China, under Commander Foote, and served with Farragut at the mouth of the Mississippi. Since the civil war the ship has performed various duties, and is now at the New York Navy yard, just released by the New Jersey Naval Militia.

The Navy Department would like to oblige California and send the Portsmouth to San Francisco to become a museum and take part in the Panama Fair of 1915, but declines as it will cost $25,000 to repair the ship and send her there. The Florida, now being completed at this navy yard, will cost nearly if not quite $3,000,000.

The Portsmouth has outlived many iron poles and is as beautiful under full sail as when she emerged from New Hampshire harbor in 1843. Her birthplace advances this plan:

Let the Portsmouth be the first ship to pass through the Panama Canal. It is her right historically. Don't send her to Norfolk to become a fever ship. How long must this particular ship work? Send her to Portsmouth, N. H. for repairs. Let her sail from her home port for San Francisco for walling, and the Portsmouth will not be late at the fair.

New York, April 8. A. E. W.

THE MAWSIM AND THE ARBOR

The Portsmouth Athletic club's big double fair, for such it really is, opens Tuesday evening, April 24. In the largest hall, the Mawsim or Moorish Bazaar, will be held. In one of the smaller halls, four in all are used, an auxiliary bazaar. The Arbor, will be held. The Mawsim or main fair will be the most elaborate, unique and brilliant exhibition of its kind ever dreamed of, much less given, in our city. The Arbor, so called from its decorative treatment and atmosphere will be a most charming and entertaining retreat for those who will wish to retire for awhile from the crowds of sightseers in the main exhibition hall.

FAIR COMMITTEE REPORT.

Regular Meeting of the P. A. C. With the Big Fair the Topic.

The regular meeting of the P. A. C. was held on Tuesday evening with a big attendance of the members. There was considerable routine business and the fair committee reported on the plans for the big event of the week of April 24. The arrangements are practically complete for the biggest amusement event since the big fair in the Machine Shop building, and the committee promises some novelties that are the real goods.

Following the meeting a supper was served and a social hour followed.

A LOT OF WORK

At the beginning of business Tuesday morning, 263 bill had passed both branches and gone to the governor, of which 226 were of house origin, while 37 started in the senate. The dead numbered 437, of which only 16 were senate bills. Only 16 bills were in house committees, while 14 were special orders, not including the lump special order of all appropriation bills made on motion of Floor Leader Aborn last Friday.

Ward three. Petit, James Pickles.

Ward four. Grand Herbert E. Phillips; Petit Arthur Horton.

NEW TALES THAT ARE TOLD

Senator Knew His People.

In the McKinley-Bryan war of 1896 Senator Money of Mississippi was a free silver, 16 to 1 man. It was of Colonel Money that Colonel Patterson, from the Memphis (Tenn.) district and a foremost gold bug, complained. Said Colonel Patterson: "I went down to Colonel Money's country to engage him in joint debate on finance. I made a speech of an hour. It was absolutely unanswerable. At its close Colonel Money arose and without attempting any reply observed: 'Colonel Patterson comes here as the representative of the plutocrats and gold bugs of Wall street. I want to ask him one question, only one, and I trust that he will answer it on his

"I want to ask him one question," honor as a southern gentleman. Isn't it a fact, sir—and here Colonel Money turned to me—'Isn't it a fact, sir, that now as we stand here your principal gold bugs and moneybags of Wall street, are engaged in marrying an American girl to a British nobleman and have agreed to give to the British government $15,000,000 to take the girl? Answer me, on your honor, sir?'"

"And," concluded Colonel Patterson disgustedly, "at that those Mississippians yelled: 'Go for him, Money! You've got him on the run! Don't let him turn or duck or get away! That was all. At the close they adopted a free silver resolution, 16 to 1, thanked me for coming, and all went home. I shall never go down into Mississippi again. They're too dense, too dark!'"

THE DEACON GAVE A SQUARE DEAL

Farmer Got What Was Coming to Him In Weights.

"Paul Morion," said a Chicago insurance agent, "was a stickler for business honesty. I once heard him, in an address to agents, declare that a dishonest dealer would turn the straightest patron's morals slightly askew."

"He illustrated this with a story. There was a farmer who sold butter to the village storekeeper, taking sugar in exchange. It seemed to the farmer after awhile that the sugar he was getting was short weight. According to him he made a complaint."

"'Look here, deacon,' he said, 'it seems to me you're giving me short weight sugar.'"

"'No,' said the deacon, a religious old man, in a dry voice, 'no, that can't be, for in measuring out that sugar of yours I always use a pound of your butter as a weight!'"

In Doubt.

Dr. Miner Lee Bates, president of Hiram college, enlivened in a recent address at Hiram, O., a knotty etymological problem with a story.

"We must not dodge our problem as the boy did," said Dr. Bates.

"A teacher, you see, was having a great deal of difficulty in making clear to a boy the meaning of the word 'recuperate.'"

"'Now,' said the teacher, 'your father is a hard worker, isn't he?'"

"'Yes, sir,' he is," said the boy.

"'And when he gets home at night he's dead tired, is he not?'"

"'Yes, sir,' he is."

"'Then,' pursued the teacher, 'since it's night and he's dead tired and work's over, what does he do?'"

"'Ah,' said the boy, 'that's what mother wants to know.'—Washington Star.

Solid Sewell.

A. W. Lafferty, who has just been elected to congress in Oregon, has a district that comprises 50,000 square miles of territory.

One night after a speech in Canon City a colored man came up and introduced himself as Tom Sewell.

"I just want to say, Mr. Lafferty," said Sewell, "that I can pledge you the solid colored vote of Grant county."

"That's fine!" exclaimed Lafferty. "I am glad to meet you. How many colored votes are there in Grant county?"

"I'm the only one," Sewell replied.—Philadelphia Saturday Evening Post.

CHANGED HIS OPINION.

He Guessed Four Times Before He Properly Labeled the Crowd.

At a banquet attended by nearly 300 members of a fraternal order in one of the large cities not long ago, given in honor of a citizen who had been elected president of the order, the orchestra, after playing several selections, struck up "Wearing of the Green." Apparently everybody present began to sing it, almost drowning out the instruments.

"It's easy to see," remarked one of the guests, "that this is an Irish crowd."

Presently the orchestra began the well known strains of "Die Wacht am Rhein," and the audience sang it en masse.

"I see I was wrong," said the guest. "This is a German crowd."

A few minutes later the musicians started up "Dixie." There was the usual clapping of hands, and everybody present turned his voice loose.

"Again I was wrong," he said. "This is a southern crowd."

At last the orchestra began to play "My Country, 'Tis of Thee." It is scarcely necessary to say that everybody stood up and sang with all his might.

"I take it all back," said the guest. "This is an American crowd."

Yet he was right, in one sense, in all four of his guesses. Yes, this is a wonderful country.—Youth's Companion.

MALADIES OF METALS.

Curious Contagious Disease That Attacks Tin, Brass and Lead.

The alleged contagious diseases of metals is a topic that has been mentioned from time to time, but shall be mentioned again because it tends to promote uniformity in our views of mineral life and other kinds of life and to discredit the fashion of regarding anything in nature as dead and inert.

In a lecture before the Societe de Chimie Physique at Paris a professor spoke of the fact that tin when exposed to a temperature below the freezing point of mercury shows a kind of eruption of pustules in which the metal loses its ordinary shining surface, becomes gray and on being cut with a saw either falls to powder or breaks up into a bundle of fibers. This affection is capable of being communicated by contact, for the application of a few grains of the powder to the surface of a block of perfectly sound tin brings about its transformation in a few days.

In another transmittable disease of tin the structure of the metal is changed and becomes crystalline. This disease has a special tendency to attack joints which have been soldered, but it attacks brass and lead as well. Metals do seem more alive and organized than the earthy minerals.—Century Path.

Punished For Looking Healthy.

In the days of the Puritans the stocks were not unknown as a penalty for looking too healthy. Huddiness of complexion was a crime when a patient visage was regarded as an outward sign of sanctity. Dr. Richard, writing in the early eighteenth century, remarks: "Then it was they would severely at a round faced man go to heaven. If he had but a little blood in his cheeks his condition was accounted dangerous and I will assure you a very honest man of sanguine complexion if he chanced to come high an official zealous house might be set in the stocks only for looking fresh on a frosty morning." Few of the January faces to be seen in a London street, however, would run any risk of drawing down this penalty.—London Chronicle.

Murder as a Fine Art.

It has been popularly supposed that Napoleon was directly and indirectly responsible for more deaths than any one else of modern times. But that estimate must be revised if the statement of Miss Southey in "Storm and Sunshine in South Africa" is to be accepted about the great Zulu king Tshaka, a contemporary of Napoleon who "is believed to have accounted for the lives of over a million of his fellow creatures." There still existed at the time of Miss Southey's visit a very old lady who had known the despot and had many reminiscences of him.

"Noblest Oblige."

In Mrs. Walford's story of Lord Mansfield in her book entitled "Recollections of a Scottish Novelist" the top note of propriety is reached.

The noble lord's young nephew, seeing him annoyed at a railway station at having no servant at hand to get his newspapers, ran posthaste and procured them. Lord Mansfield showed no gratitude whatever.

"Edward," was all he would say. "recollect, Edward, that a gentleman should never hurry himself in public."

Easy Money.

"I am working my way through college."

"Brave girl! How do you earn money?"

"Well, father gives me $10 for every singing lesson I don't take."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Humor and Philosophy

By DUNCAN H. SMITH

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

It may be one reason why some men can't see why they shouldn't paint things red is because they are color blind.

Don't lend trouble to your friends. If you must deal in the commodity just give it to them.

The most fascinating exercise in the world is knocking. At least accomplished knockers never seem to tire.

One way to be happy is to keep an appetite for breakfast.

True, there is an end to all things, but of most it is better to be associated with the front end than the rear.

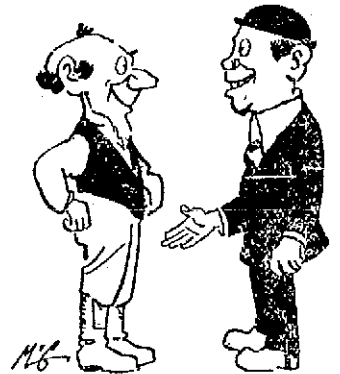

Probably the reason some men marry is because they instinctively know that they get along better if they have a boss.

If you are modest and retiring let other people praise you. You will never be embarrassed by adulation.

Kitchen maids will be scarce just as long as Lord Percy Algernon de Montmorency shows such a decided preference for the beautiful cloak model.

A girl doesn't necessarily string a young man just because she has him on a string.

Wonderful.

"You have a wonderful climate here."

"How is that?"

"I met a girl here who is only twenty-two whom I knew five years ago back east. She was twenty-three then."

Our Turn.

We read in works by poets wrought about the good old time. But soon they'll sing about this age in high and joyous rhyme. And when they come to eulogize our age and with the tune connect They'll find a lot of splendid charms We do not now suspect.

Wanted the Trimmings.

"I'm tired of life. Some of these days I am going to shuffle off."

"You are kidding."

"Not me."

"There is the river handy."

"Too moist."

"A gun costs but a few dollars."

"See here, do you think I am a cheap guy? If I can't go the automobile bill route I won't at all."

Not in Some Families.

"A man ought to have two pairs of shoes. It is economy."

"Oh, is it?"

"It is for a fact."

"How is he going to keep his wife from giving the pair he isn't wearing to a beggar?"

Class Bound.

"He'll never be rich."

"Why?"

"He always waits for an introduction."

"To whom?"

"To a good thing."

He Knew a Way.

"It looks like rain."

"It does indeed."

"Aren't you taking your umbrella along?"

"Don't you think I have any ability as a rustler?"

Piling It On.

"I wouldn't treat a dog the way you have treated me."

"I wouldn't treat a nice dog that way, either. Chase yourself."

The Pessimist.

Old Tom Travers, gray and cranky, Wouldn't smile if he were paid. Finding fault his occupation, His amusement and his trade. No one did a thing to please him. All day long he had the blues. Wasn't that a disposition That a man would want to lose?

Didn't like the way the neighbors

Mowed the grass or cut their hair. If he did a man a favor Growned about it as a bear: Never tried to make excuses For the person who was down: Always knew the man would only Be a burden on the town.

Didn't like the way the people

Voted on election day. Nor could he abide reformers Who had worked the other way: Didn't like the way the women Wore their gowns or combed their hair: Had no use for politicians. Not a one was on the square.

So he fussed around and grumbled

Without method, without end. And you may be very certain That he didn't have a friend: Such a lovely disposition. But it's one that I would hate To observe my little children Break their backs to imitate.

BECOMES A CITIZEN

New York, April 11—Capt. Robert Bartlett, master of the Peary Arctic ship Roosevelt, became an American citizen today.

Capt. Bartlett was a Newfoundland and accompanied Commander Peary, now a rear admiral on his journey to the north pole. With the exception of Peary, the master of the Roosevelt has been nearer to the "top of the world" than any white man. Capt. Bartlett took out citizenship papers some time ago and makes his home in Brooklyn when in this city. Bartlett is organizing an expedition to try for the south pole.

CITY LOSES
BY BIG STOCK
MANIPULATION

In a statement filed with the board of tax assessors at city hall Monday, it is shown that 229 shares of stock in the New Hampshire National bank, formerly owned by Mrs. Frank Jones, have been transferred to three fire insurance companies, and by this stock manipulation the city loses $29,000 worth of taxable assets.

The statement tells that the stock was divided among the Granite State Fire Insurance company, the Portsmouth Fire association and the Piscataqua Fire association.

In addition to the $29,000 lost through the transfer of stock, the city loses $29,000 of taxable goods that was "stored" by the Pacific Mills of Dover in the plant of the old White Mountain Paper company, and the assessors also face an increased appropriation.

Could Not Stand Prosperity.

William J. Garrity, paymaster's clerk in the navy, has been dismissed by Acting Secretary Winthrop, upon sentence of court martial. Garrity was tried on three charges, in involving embezzlement of money and scandalous conduct. He was acquitted on the charge of embezzlement, but was convicted on other charges which had to do with irregularities in the handling of funds. Garrity, who is a native of New Jersey was stationed in the Bremerton navy yard. The case had been pending since last July, there having been two courts of inquiry and two courts martial. A paymaster was reduced two numbers for not knowing what was going on in his office. Garrity enlisted as a seaman in 1900 and was appointed pay clerk in February, 1910—Army and Navy Register.

They All Saw Kelley.

The clerks at the yard today feel delighted over their victory against the pencil pushers on the Elks bowling alleys Tuesday night. The question of who will be captain of the clerks has been decided in favor of Kelley, the Saco wizard, who, inspired by rosters, produced so much work for the pin boys that the kids are under a physician's care today and may not again be found on the job. "Did Kelley come back?" He was certainly there in full form and they all saw him.

Tom Finishes His Cruise.

Warrant machinist Thomas O'Donnell of the U. S. S. New Hampshire who is well and favorably known in this city, has been detached from duty on that ship and ordered to his home at Tacoma, Pa.

Can Do It Without Congress.

The naval authorities are proceeding with the work of installing an emergency repair station at Guantanamo, in Cuba, for which purpose Congress has appropriated $378,000. The buildings will be of the simple construction suitable for that climate, and it is expected that the floating dry dock at Pensacola will be transferred to Guantanamo, although there is some question whether it would not be of more advantage to make use of the floating dry dock at New Orleans. The latter has a lifting capacity of 10,000 tons, while the Pensacola dock can only lift 6,000 tons, with no chance of additions or alterations in either structure for increase in lifting capacity. Congress failed to authorize in so many words, the transfer of floating dry docks from place to place, as was recommended by the secretary of the navy, but it is assumed at the department that there is no necessity for special legislation to this end.

Back on His Former Job.

Victor Hulteen, a draftsman, recently sent from this yard to Key West, has been transferred back to his old position in the yards and docks at this station and reported for duty today.

A New One Found.

Since the admirers of Mike Cahill of the Topeka began throwing bouquets at him as a boxer, there are not a few of the guard who say the real fast man in pugilistic circles at the yard is J. Burke, also of the Topeka, and that Cahill is not in the same class in the ring. Local scrappers who know them both say they are affected by pipe dreams.

TO ENLARGE COLBY
ACADEMY AT NEW LONDON

The midyear meeting of the board of trustees of the New Hampshire Baptist convention was held at the First Baptist church at Manchester on Tuesday. The president Rev. A. E. Woods of Exeter, presided.

The reports of the field workers were presented, which showed very satisfactory work. The delegates for the Baptist world alliance and the Northern Baptist conference, both to be held in Philadelphia in June, were also made for summer supplies in the different fields.

Rev. John S. Blais, the new evangelist, made his report, which showed very good results in the 10 fields in which he worked. A committee was appointed to arrange for the federation work of the churches.

Resolutions of indorsement were adopted concerning plans for the enlargement of Colby academy at New London. A friend has volunteered a gift of $105,000 for the building of a new administration building under condition that $18,000 be provided by other friends of the school. The trustees of the academy have already raised or pledged themselves for this amount and the work on the foundation will be begun as early as possible so that the corner stone will be laid during commencement in June.

The academy is having an era of prosperity and has the largest enrollment in its history. Among those present at the meeting were Rev. A. E. Woods of Exeter, H. A. Yeaton of Portsmouth, L. J. Dunn of Keene, Rev. W. P. Stanley of Portsmouth, Rev. J. B. Gilman of Nashua, Judge George A. Worcester and Charles A. Tees of Milford.

At noon a short recess was taken in which the ladies of the First Baptist church furnished dinner. Those in charge were Mrs. J. K. Currier, chairman, Mrs. G. Armstrong, Mrs. A. Roberts, Mrs. C. H. Sawyer, Mrs. J. Choate and Mrs. L. Hall.

MARINE HELD
FOR THEFT OF A WATCH

Joseph Warger reported to the police this morning that his watch had been stolen by a marine in the eating house in the North End, run by M. Cella.

The watch was found in a pawn shop where the soldier sold it. Deputy Hurley detailed Officer Burke in company with M. Silverman, who purchased the watch, and Warger, to go to the navy yard and locate the man. He was found on the prison ship Sonthery and gave his name as Frank Hayfussler.

He denies stealing the watch and informed the police that he won the time piece in a contest. The commander of the ship and the police appeared before the commandant of the yard, who wired the navy department on the case as soon as the warrant was placed in his hands.

OBITUARY

Benjamin F. Hamilton.

Senator Benjamin F. Hamilton died at his home, 368 Alfred street, Biddeford, Tuesday, aged 71 years. He is the second member of the Maine senate to die since the legislature convened early in January.

Senator Hamilton, who has been a prominent member of the York county bar for many years, and is well known in this vicinity, was born in East Waterboro, Me., in 1840.

He passed his boyhood days on his father's farm in Waterboro, and completed a course in the Literary Institute at North Hamilton, N. H., after which he taught school for 11 winters. In the summer he worked on the farm and also engaged in burning charcoal. He next taught school in Kennebunk, Waterboro and Alfred, after which he began the study of law in the office of the late Hon. Ira T. Drew.

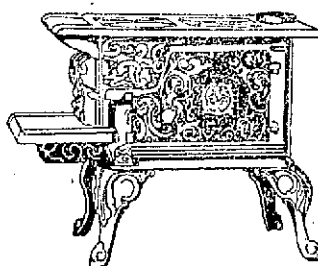

He was admitted to the York bar in 1860, and after attending a course of lectures at the Cambridge law school in 1861, where he had since been established.

In politics Mr. Hamilton has always been a republican, and was at an early age deeply in sympathy with the abolition movement. He has held many offices. He was a deputy sheriff of York county for three years, a member of the board of assessors of Biddeford for six years and held the office of city collector for five years. He was a member of the republican state committee for eight years, when the late Hon. James G. Blaine was at the height of his influence.

In 1873 he was elected a representative to the legislature, and during the session he labored energetically for the best interests of the state. He was afterward re-elected to that house. Two years ago he was elected a senator from the southeastern district of York county, and last September he was re-elected.

He was appointed postmaster by President U. S. Grant, and he administered the affairs of the office for four years. He was president and a trustee of the Maine state agricultural society for 12 years, and was for many years a member of the Patrons of Husbandry of that city.

He has filled the chairs in the lodge of Knights of Pythias and was prominent in Locomotive lodge and York encampment, I. O. O. F. He was for four years grand worthy secretary of Good Templars. He is survived by a wife.
